

Getting it Together

Submitted by Doug Chabot on Mon, 12/28/2015 - 13:49

The first turns of the ski season can be dicey: the snowpack is thin, avalanche skills are rusty and we are itching to get out and play. This is a recipe for avalanches and injury, not success. Fortunately, our stoke and motivation can make us ready for better, deeper times. We wax skis, tune sleds and rip tags off new gear to get ready, but we are not done. What causes avalanches? You! More than 90 percent of fatal recreational avalanche are triggered by the people involved. To be safe and come back alive follow these five steps before loading up the vehicle, heading to the trailhead and entering avalanche terrain.

CARVE 12.18.15.pdf

Publication

Carve

Date of Publication

Friday 12/18/15