

This avalanche was triggered by a piece of cornice that broke as someone approached the ridge. He luckily was able to arrest his fall and not go with the cornice. The slope fractured when the cornice hit one of the rock bands seen in the bed surface. You can see the path of the cornice just right of the summit. Photo by Patrick Orton

Advisory Region
Bridger Range
Bridger Range, 2010-02-16